Get Organized

Organizing your personal assets, expenses and documents is a priority, regardless of your age. If you are injured, become ill or die suddenly, organized personal records will be helpful for those who must handle your household, legal and financial matters. Use this inventory to help you get organized. Update and review periodically with your loved ones.

Your inventory of personal assets, expenses and documents

- Authorize a trusted person to discuss your account information with VRS representatives (VRS-900) or complete and file a VRS Durable Power of Attorney (VRS-901) to allow an individual to take action on your behalf.
- Refer to the VRS brochure, Losing a Loved One: Guide for Families, for contacts that can be a useful addition to your planning.
- Contact VRS for counseling about your available benefits; the counseling center is open Monday–Friday, 8:30 a.m.–4 p.m., 888-827-3847.
- Contact ICMA-RC for counseling on defined contribution plans; Participant Services is open Monday–Friday, 8:30 a.m.–9 p.m., VRS-DC-PLAN1 (877-327-5261), select option 1, or TDD: 800-669-7471.
- With key details in one place, your executor and/or your survivors can take care of your property and resolve legal and financial matters.
- Include any document that might be useful information for your executor and survivors.
- Ensure that sensitive personal information is kept in a secure place and only shared on a need-to-know basis with trusted contacts, such as your attorney or executor.

If you are a VRS member or retiree:

- Visit varetire.org for information, publications and forms referenced here.
- Log into your myVRS account at myVRS.varetire.org for secure access to your retirement benefit information.
- Keep your beneficiary information current with these forms, available at varetire.org/forms:
  - Designation of Beneficiary (defined benefit plan) (VRS-2)
  - Designation of Beneficiary (defined contribution plan, if you participate)

Points to Consider

This inventory is a starting point. Some items listed here may not apply to you. Others may require extensive documentation.

- Include any document that might be useful information for your executor and survivors.
- Ensure that sensitive personal information is kept in a secure place and only shared on a need-to-know basis with trusted contacts, such as your attorney or executor.
Information to Include

What format should you use for your inventory? Develop a secure format that works for you. You may find it works well to create a central document or spreadsheet for recording contacts, personal information, household details and property records. Policies, manuals, warranties and financial statements can be stored in folders in a secure location.

Family, Friends and Key Contacts
List each person's name and contact information. For family members, include their relationship to you.

Information provided in this document is intended to be general. It cannot be complete in all details and cannot supersede or restrict the authority granted by the Code of Virginia, which may be amended from time to time.

This inventory is not meant to provide legal, financial or tax advice. Consult a professional for guidance and assistance.

Although it’s a good idea to store important documents in your safe deposit box, do not store your will or burial/memorial instructions there. The box may be sealed at your death, unless you have specifically authorized your executor to open it.
A record of your valuable possessions is useful for insurance claims, to determine your estate’s value and to name recipients for items.

- Use additional sheets as needed
- Include photographs and appraisals of treasured items with this list
- Keep a file of receipts, warranties and manuals for household appliances and equipment

Creditors, Loans and Expenses
For each creditor, list:
- Creditor and contact information

Memberships
For each organization, list:
- Organization name and contact information
- Offices held/awards received, if applicable
- Badge disposition guidelines, if applicable

Many organizations, including sororities, fraternities and Masonic groups, have specific guidelines for badge or insignia disposition following a member’s death.
If you belong to such an organization, consult its headquarters or website for guidance on what should be done with badges or insignia after a member dies.
Inventory of Assets: Quick Reference

Complete this form and only share copies with your attorney, executor and others you trust who will need a quick reference to this information in the event of your illness, injury or death. Secure this inventory as you would secure your personal and financial information; review and update it on a regular basis.
